Gymnasium Jim

New gags, humorously worked out at a hurricane speed, are the feature of "Gymnasium Gym" the latest Billy Bevan short comedy from the Mack Sennett workshop.

As proprietor of a combination garage and blacksmith shop, Bevan lives in deadly fear of his gigantic assistant, Kewpie Morgan. Kewpie also has an eye on Billy's girl, the post mistress, played by Mildred June.

Coincidentally with the arrival of Fat Lobac, a crooked prize fighter, in the small country town, comes the announcement that Billy has fallen heir to a large sum of money. Morgan immediately plans to win the girl and the money in one stroke. He flatters Billy by telling him that June will marry the man who proves his physical prowess by beating Lobac in the ring. He gets Billy not only to fall for this stunt but to wager the entire amount of his inheritance upon the outcome of the match.

At the psychological moment of the fight Lobac catches Billy on the jaw with an uppercut and the time keeper is still counting while the two crooks make their getaway with Billy's money. Bevan recovers to realize he has been victimized and starts a pursuit that results in a sensational chase - from the standpoint of unusual camera work. By keen ingenuity Billy recovers his fortune and his girl at the same time.
